Huanke Testing International(Tianjin) Co.,LTD which founded in December 2010 is owned by the Tianjin Academy of Environmental Sciences in accordance with the law independent legal entity registered testing organization.

The company formerly known as the Central Laboratory of Tianjin Academy of Environmental Sciences has undertaken 160 research projects at all levels, more than 300,000 valid experimental data, to provide a reliable data to support research work.

Central Bureau of Huanke Testing International(Tianjin) Co, LTD of Tianjin Academy of Environmental Sciences for technical support, to engage in air, water, noise, soil, solid waste, ecology, indoor air quality of the environment in the field of detection; company gas detection based on odor pollution in the State Key Laboratory of is the only nationwide odor pollution control research laboratory specializing in odor detection and research authority. In addition, the company have strong strength in industrial waste water, micro-organisms and biological detection.

Domestic land contamination study focuses on contaminated land restoration, identification and evaluation of methods and technical standards for the systematic study of land contamination is still in its infancy in China. Our existing soil standard system developed earlier and has been seriously lagging behind the progress of the repair technique, which involves the lack of environmental factors and some of the standard value is not reasonable, which makes China's current environmental site assessment and restoration work into passive state, so foreign companies need each other to provide a relatively comprehensive standard system and standard setting for domestic reference.
